Announcing the new dates for the exhibitions, Thomas Schlitt, Managing Director, Messe Düsseldorf India, said, “Health and safety of our exhibitors, sponsors and visitors has been the biggest priority for us during past few months and it continues to be so. However, we are hopeful that the world as well as businesses will soon take a hopeful turn. As we regret the inconveniences occurred due to our plan to postpone this year’s show, we are very excited to meet you in September, 2021 with even more enthusiasm and expectations.”

“We have also realized that tough times give us initial challenges but present to us a great deal of opportunities. Keeping that in mind, I am sure that we can expect an array of even more advanced products, technologies and solutions. We will also be delighted to offer a potent platform for the industry stakeholders to meet, greet, share ideas and do fruitful businesses together,” he said.

Asked about his expectations from the exhibitions, Lakhan Singh, Editor and Publisher, Glass Bulletin, said although the industry was going through a very difficult time because of the pandemic, he was hopeful that the worst was over.

“Though we have had a few setbacks this year, we are sure the glass industry will bounce back in no time aided by our collective efforts and supported by our government's initiatives and policies. We are confident that the coming year will be huge for the industry and the glass sector will see tremendous growth,” he asserted.

The last edition of the events was a huge success. There was a marked increase in the number of exhibitors, visitors and international participants compared to the year before that. The number of exhibiting companies stood at 195. Given the growth in popularity and clientele, the exhibitions are certainly going to script yet another success next year.

The show is supported by prestigious industry associations like AIGMF (All India Glass Manufacturers Federation Ltd), Builder Association of India, Ludhiana Glass Dealers Association, Noida Glass and Dealers Association, The Madras Glass & Plywood Merchant Association and Rajkot Glass Merchant Association.
